USA on NS2 reduces the security of a large part of Europe [PL / EN]

President Andrzej Duda criticized the US-German agreement on the construction of Nord Stream 2. According to the President, the declaration by Germany and the USA reduces the security of a large part of Europe and may be an incentive for the Kremlin to pursue a fait accompli policy.

The administration of the US President Joe Biden and the German Ministry of Foreign Affairs announced on Wednesday an agreement to end the dispute over the Nord Stream 2 gas pipeline. Russia's actions.

- The declaration of Germany and the USA reduces the security of a large part of Europe, including a number of European Union countries. Unfortunately, it resembles the reset with Russia in 2009, which had an impact on the later aggressive policy of Russia and, as a result, the tragedy of Ukraine - said President Andrzej Duda.

As he noted, "the document also contradicts the claims about the business nature of Nord Stream 2." - It is significant that the "agreement" was negotiated over the heads of many countries, especially Ukraine, and Chancellor Merkel personally informed Vladimir Putin about its conclusion - said the President.

According to Andrzej Duda, "the declaration makes it possible to complete the construction of Nord Stream 2 without any restrictions, it does not introduce a moratorium on its use, and in fact it may even be an incentive for the Kremlin to pursue an fait accompli policy".

- In this situation, it is the duty of the Polish authorities to complete the construction of the country's energy independence as soon as possible - said President Duda, specifying that the priorities include "expansion of the gas terminal system and development of transmission infrastructure, also within the framework of projects related to the Three Seas Initiative."

The president emphasized that this is "a continuation of the policy of strengthening Poland's energy security initiated by Lech Kaczyński." (PAP)
